Definitions:

Unrated Responses -- Calculates the usage of the unrated field in the DRDP-R. It is permissible to use the unrated field, but it should be done sparingly. Excessive use may indicate a quality issue with the process. In order to maintain consistency, blank or multiple responses are also included here.

Blank or Multiple Responses -- A blank response means that neither a developmental level nor 'unrated' was selected. Multiple indicates that more than one developmental level was selected. Ideally, there will be no blank or multiple responses. A high level of errors here may indicate problems with the profile or in completing the Data Entry Sheet.

Misuse of Emerging -- The emerging field should always be used in conjunction with a Developmental Level. A common error is to use it as its own developmental level (as it was in the original DRDP). Use in this way likely indicates a training need. Emerging cannot be used with the highest or the lowest developmental level.

Assessments with Minimal Variability -- Occasionally, but rarely, profiles are completed by marking the same developmental level for every measure. This quality element measures the percentage of assessments in which 90% of developmental levels were identical. If assessments appear in this category, they may indicate that the
